Today, young people make friends on the internet without thinking. Share everything with them. Many times, strangers also start harassing them after knowing their personal secrets.

The risk of cyber mobbing in India is increasing rapidly. The trend of bullying, harassment and blackmailing teenagers and children in the country is increasing rapidly. Some similar incidents have happened recently. Vivek studying in a Kanpur school became a victim of cyber bullying. Due to the horror of some rogue youths, Vivek now neither works on computer nor goes to play in the school grounds. He is constantly looking at the sky.

Something similar happened with creation. He studies in a public school in Banaras. His friends edited his photo on photoshop and added it to a class girl and uploaded it to the social networking site. Since then, Srishna and the girl did not go to school for a month in shame. A 21-year-old student studying engineering in Punjab was found hanging from a fan in his hostel room. He had a dream of becoming a computer engineer. A note was found in his room in which he alleged that two former college students allegedly harassed him by making objectionable comments about him on Facebook.

Similarly, Neelam, a promising girl studying in IMA in Bengaluru, also committed suicide. Neelam broke up from her boyfriend and when she woke up in the morning, the young man had allegedly written on Facebook. 'I am feeling super cool because I have left my girlfriends.' After this Neelam committed suicide. In a school in Allahabad, Nishi was thrown out of his group by his friends on a minor matter because his school boy was heard from a group. To avenge her, the children of her class deleted Nishi from the WhatsApp group and unfollowed it from Facebook. Nishi, 16, felt insulted by this.

The joy of his face disappeared. Parents are also worried because of his misguided public life. Nowadays many young people live a moment of their personal life on Facebook, Twitter. They do not understand that in such a situation their private life becomes public rather than their own. Then every aspect of their life is in front of the world. When growing close to unknown people, then the possibility of cyber bullying also increases. The speed with which children are connecting in the country, they are also falling prey to hooliganism occurring there. The cyber world is making him a joke in a few minutes. They are becoming infamous among their friends and are committing suicide.

Today, cyber bullying is becoming a challenge for parents and teachers. They do not understand how to protect children from this, today there is a glut of comments in the cyber world. Such people unnecessarily infiltrate the personal affairs of others. He enjoys making comments, vulgar comments and campaign pages. They are bent on ending the sukhchain of others. Actually, cyber bullying has become a deadly reason for the cyber world today. Why did Sunanda Pushkar die? This is a matter of investigation, but the truth is that she was also a victim of the cyber world who is intent on staining anyone's honor and name.

Cyber bullying is whether people do not know much about cyber bullying, so they fall prey to it, but it is not difficult to understand it. Today this adult and minor has become a threat to all kinds of net users. Actually, this means to threaten, intimidate or harass someone through the Internet. Every such activity done on the Internet is bullying which targets a man. Cyber bullying is to make one's personal information, photos or videos public. Cyber bullying is also obscene talk about anyone on the internet. Blackmailing anyone in any way in the cyber world is also called cyber bullying.

Talking about the statistics, 53% of the victims of online harassment, trouble or embarrassment in this way are using internet. According to a survey, in Kolkata metropolis alone, this problem is increasing at the rate of 30 percent every year. About 55 percent of the parents believe that this is happening due to networking cyber. About 50 percent of teenagers in India use internet on mobile phones. Actually, due to cyber crimes and lack of law, such crimes are increasing in the country. The youth are the victims of this. Fantasy friends made on social networking cyber take teenagers into the world of fantasy. Just from there, the ground for their harassment is prepared.

The problem is that parents of children also encourage them to know. The situation now is that a 5-year-old child also gets an account on social networking sites, while his minimum age is 13 years. What our law says, India passed the Information Technology Act in the year 2000. Social networking sites were not popular at that time. These laws related to cyber crime are not effective. Even if a lawsuit is lodged with this, bail is obtained. That is why people do not have fear. Here are some important points of law

If you send or publish any objectionable message through your mobile or computer, then it is a punishable offense.
